

Checklist of the documents Before Buying a Property

Title / Conveyance Deed:	Title deed shows name of the owner of property it may obtain name as CD/ Mutation / Farad and is issued by Governing Authority or Revenue department.
Sale Deed :	A legal document that transfers the ownership of the property from the seller to the buyer.
Mother Deed :	The mother deed is a Record of the Chain of Ownership of the property from the original Owner to the Current Seller.
Encumbrance Certificate:	It is issued by revenue department which verifies that the property is free from any monetary or legal liabilities such as mortgages, loans, or litigation.
Tax Receipts :	It is important to verify that the seller has no outstanding liabilities on the property like Property taxes, Electricity Charges, Municipal/Water charges and maintenance charges (applicable in case of a project or a property by builder).
Building Plan Approval :	Applicable in case of built-up properties to verify that the building plan has been approved by the relevant local authority.
Occupancy Certificate :	Applicable In case of buying from a builder, this is issued by the local Municipal Authority / Department of Town Planning or other upon completion of construction.
Completion Certificate :	Applicable In case of buying a built-up property, this is issued by the local authorities after the construction of the building or project is completed as per the approved plan.
No Objection Certificates and No Due Certificate (NOCs):
:	It is usually needed in case of buying from a Government Authority, Cooperative Society and /or from a builder.
Permission to Sell :	It is needed in case of buying property of a Government Authority.
Agreement to Sell :	This should be on a stamp paper of Rs.4000/- The agreement to sell helps ensure that all essential aspects of the sale, including the price, Size, Facing, Located at road size, payment schedule, possession date, and date for Sale Deed and other conditions are clearly defined.
Allotment Letter :	In case of buying from a builder, the Allotment Letter outlines the details of the property, the price, and the payment schedule.
Sale Deed :	After completion of payment/time it happens in the office of Tehsildar/Revenue Officer by paying Stamp Duty, as applicable.
Alert(s) :	Before buying any property of Government, Builder or a Seller all documents need a check and purchase when all are seen and verified thoroughly to safeguarding your investment and ensuring a smooth and legally sound transaction.

☎ 7814613916
Amritpal Singh

www.realtyconsultants.in

REALTY HOLDING & MANAGEMENT CONSULTANTS
Consultancy | Liaisoning | Property Management

